THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST

Oscar Wilde

Wilde, Oscar (1854-1900) - An Irish-born English poet, novelist, and playwright. Considered an eccentric, he was the leader of the aesthetic movement that advocated “art for art’s sake” and was once imprisoned for two years with hard labor for homosexual practices. The Importance of Being Earnest (1895) - Subtitled, “A Trivial Comedy for Serious People,” this play is often considered Wilde’s masterpiece. Based on a misunderstanding over the name “Ernest,” it is an attack on earnestness.

THE SCENES OF THE PLAY

ACT. I, Algernon Moncrieff’s Flat in Half-Moon Street, W.
ACT. II, The Garden the at the Manor House, Woolton.
ACT III, Morning-room at the Manor House, Woolton.
Time, The Present.

FIRST ACT

SCENE- Morning-room in Algernon’s flat in Half-Moon Street. The room is luxuriously and artistically furnished. The sound of a piano is heard in the adjoining room. [Lane is arranging afternoon tea on the table, and after the music has ceased, Algernon enters.]

ALG Did you hear what I was playing, Lane? LANE I didn’t think it polite to listen, sir.

ALG I’m sorry for that, for your sake. I don’t play accurately- anyone can play accurately- but I play with wonderful expression. As far as the piano is concerned, sentiment is my forte. I keep science for Life.

LANE Yes, sir.

ALG And, speaking of the science of Life, have you got the cucumber sandwiches cut for Lady Bracknell? LANE Yes, sir.

[Hands them on a salver.]

ALG [Inspects them, takes two, and sits down on the sofa.] Oh!... by the way, Lane, I see from your book that on Thursday night, when Lord Shoreman and Mr. Worthing were dining with me, eight bottles of champagne are entered as having been consumed.

LANE Yes, sir; eight bottles and a pint.
ALG Why is it that at a bachelor’s establishment the servants invariably drink the champagne? I ask merely for information.

LANE I attribute it to the superior quality of the wine, sir. I have often observed that in married households the champagne is rarely of a first-rate brand.

ALG Good Heavens! Is marriage so demoralising as that? LANE I believe it is a very pleasant state, sir. I have had very little experience of it myself up to the present. I have only been married once.

That was in consequence of a misunderstanding between myself and a young person.

ALG [Languidly.] I don’t know that I am much interested in your family life, Lane. LANE No, sir; it is not a very interesting subject. I never think of it myself. ALG Very natural, I am sure. That will do, Lane, thank you. LANE Thank you, sir.

[LANE goes out.]

ALG Lane’s views on marriage seem somewhat lax. Really, if the lower orders don’t set us a good example, what on earth is the use of them? They seem, as a class, to have absolutely no sense of moral responsibility.

[Enter Lane.]

LANE Mr. Ernest Worthing.

[Enter Jack.]

[LANE goes out.]

ALG How are you, my dear Ernest? What brings you up to town? JACK Oh, pleasure, pleasure! What else should bring one anywhere? Eating as usual, I see, Algy!

ALG [Stiffly.] I believe it is customary in good society to take some slight refreshment at five o’clock. Where have you been since last Thursday? JACK [Sitting down on the sofa.] In the country. ALG What on earth do you do there? JACK [Pulling off his gloves.]
When one is in town one amuses oneself. When one is in the country one amuses other people. It is excessively boring.

ALG And who are the people you amuse?
JACK [Airily.] Oh, neighbours, neighbours.
ALG Got nice neighbours in your part of Shropshire?
JACK Perfectly horrid! Never speak to one of them.
ALG How immensely you must amuse them!
[Goes over and takes sandwich.] By the way, Shropshire is your county, is it not?
JACK Eh? Shropshire? Yes, of course. Hallo! Why all these cups? Why cucumber sandwiches? Why such reckless extravagance in one so young? Who is coming to tea?

ALG Oh! merely Aunt Augusta and Gwendolen.
JACK How perfectly delightful!
ALG Yes, that is all very well; but I am afraid Aunt Augusta won’t quite approve of your being here.
JACK May I ask why?
ALG My dear fellow, the way you flirt with Gwendolen is perfectly disgraceful. It is almost as bad as the way Gwendolen flirts with you.

JACK I am in love with Gwendolen. I have come up to town expressly to propose to her.

ALG I thought you had come up for pleasure?... I call that business.

JACK How utterly unromantic you are!
ALG I really don’t see anything romantic in proposing. It is very romantic to be in love. But there is nothing romantic about a definite proposal. Why, one may be accepted. One usually is, I believe. Then the excitement is all over. The very essence of romance is uncertainty. If ever I get married, I’ll certainly try to forget the fact.

JACK I have no doubt about that, dear Algy. The Divorce Court was specially invented for people whose memories are so curiously constituted.

ALG Oh! there is no use speculating on that subject. Divorces are made in Heaven[Jack puts out his hand to take a sandwich. Algernon at once interferes.] Please don’t touch the cucumber sandwiches. They are ordered specially for Aunt Augusta. [Takes one and eats it.]
JACK Well, you have been eating them all the time.

ALG That is quite a different matter. She is my aunt.
[Takes plate from below.] Have some bread and butter. The bread and butter is for Gwendolen. Gwendolen is devoted to bread and butter.

JACK

[Advancing to table and helping himself.]
And very good bread and butter it is too.
ALG Well, my dear fellow, you need not eat as if you were going to eat it all. You behave as if you were married to her already. You are not married to her already, and I don’t think you ever will be.

JACK Why, on earth do you say that?
ALG Well, in the first place girls never marry the men they flirt with.
Girls don’t think it right.
JACK Oh, that is nonsense!
ALG It isn’t. It is a great truth. It accounts for the extraordinary number of bachelors that one sees all over the place. In the second place, I don’t give my consent.

JACK Your consent!
ALG My dear fellow, Gwendolen is my first cousin. And before I allow you to marry her, you will have to clear up the whole question of Cecily.

[Rings bell.]
JACK Cecily! What on earth do you mean? What do you mean, Algy, by Cecily? I don’t know anyone of the name of Cecily.

[Enter Lane.]
ALG Bring me that cigarette case Mr. Worthing left in the smokingroom the last time he dined here.
LANE Yes, sir.
[Lane goes out.]
JACK Do you mean to say you have had my cigarette case all this time? I wish to goodness you had let me know. I have been writing frantic letters to Scotland Yard about it. I was very nearly offering a large reward.
ALG Well, I wish you would offer one. I happen to be more than usually hard up.
JACK There is no good offering a large reward now that the thing is found.
[Enter Lane with the cigarette case on a salver. Algernon takes it at once. Lane goes out.]
ALG I think that is rather mean of you, Ernest, I must say.
[Opens case and examines it.]
However, it makes no matter, for, now that I look at the inscription inside, I find that the thing isn’t yours after all.

JACK Of course it’s mine.
[Moving to him.]
You have seen me with it a hundred times, and you have no right whatsoever to read what is written inside. It is a very ungentlemanly thing to read a private cigarette case.

ALG Oh! it is absurd to have a hard-and-fast rule about what one should read and what one shouldn’t. More than half of modern culture depends on what one shouldn’t read.

JACK I am quite aware of the fact, and I don’t propose to discuss modern culture. It isn’t the sort of thing one should talk of in private. I simply want my cigarette case back.

ALG Yes; but this isn’t your cigarette case. This cigarette case is a present from someone of the name of Cecily, and you said you didn’t know anyone of that name.

JACK Well, if you want to know, Cecily happens to be my aunt.

ALG Your aunt!
JACK Yes. Charming old lady she is, too. Lives at Tunbridge Wells.
Just give it back to me, Algy.

ALG
[Retreating to back of sofa.]

But why does she call herself Cecily if she is your aunt and lives at Tunbridge Wells?
[Reading.]
“From little Cecily with her fondest love.” JACK
[Moving to sofa and kneeling upon it.]
My dear fellow, what on earth is there in that? Some aunts are tall, some aunts are not tall. That is a matter that surely an aunt may be allowed to decide for herself. You seem to think that every aunt should be exactly like your aunt! That is absurd! For Heaven’s sake give me back my cigarette case.

[Follows Algy round the room.]
ALG Yes. But why does your aunt call you her uncle? “From little Cecily, with her fondest love to her dear Uncle Jack.” There is no objection, I admit, to an aunt being a small aunt, but why an aunt, no matter what her size may be, should call her own nephew her uncle, I can’t quite make out. Besides, your name isn’t Jack at all; it is Ernest.

JACK It isn’t Ernest; it’s Jack.

ALG You have always told me it was Ernest. I have introduced you to everyone as Ernest. You answer to the name of Ernest. You look as if your name was Ernest. You are the most earnest looking person I ever saw in my life. It is perfectly absurd your saying that your name isn’t Ernest. It’s on your cards. Here is one of them.

[Taking it from case.]
“Mr. Ernest Worthing, B. 4, The Albany.” I’ll keep this as a proof that your name is Ernest if ever you attempt to deny it to me, or to Gwendolen, or to anyone else.

[Putting the card in his pocket.]
JACK Well, my name is Ernest in town and Jack in the country, and the cigarette case was given to me in the country.

ALG Yes, but that does not account for the fact that your small Aunt Cecily, who lives at Tunbridge Wells, calls you her dear uncle.

Come, old boy, you had much better have the thing out at once.

JACK My dear Algy, you talk exactly as if you were a dentist. It is very vulgar to talk like a dentist when one isn’t a dentist. It produces a false impression.

ALG Well, that is exactly what dentists always do. Now, go on! Tell me the whole thing. I may mention that I have always suspected you of being a confirmed and secret Bunburyist; and I am quite sure of it now.

JACK Bunburyist! What on earth do you mean by a Bunburyist? ALG I’ll reveal to you the meaning of that incomparable expression as soon as you are kind enough to inform me why you are Ernest in town and Jack in the country.
JACK Well, produce my cigarette case first.
ALG Here it is.
[Hands cigarette case.]
Now produce your explanation, and pray make it improbable.
[Sits on sofa.]
JACK My dear fellow, there is nothing improbable about my explanation at all. In fact it's perfectly ordinary. Old Mr. Thomas Cardew, who adopted me when I was a little boy, made me in his will guardian to his granddaughter, Miss Cecily Cardew. Cecily, who addresses me as her uncle from motives of respect that you could not possibly appreciate, lives at my place in the country under the charge of her admirable governess, Miss Prism.

ALG Where is that place in the country, by the way? JACK That is nothing to you, dear boy. You are not going to be invited. I may tell you candidly that the place is not in Shropshire.

ALG I suspected that, my dear fellow! I have Bunburyed all over Shropshire on two separate occasions. Now go on. Why are you Ernest in town and Jack in the country?

JACK My dear Algy, I don't know whether you will be able to understand my real motives. You are hardly serious enough. When one is placed in the position of guardian, one has to adopt a very high moral tone on all subjects. It's one's duty to do so. And as a high moral tone can hardly be said to conduce very much to either one's health or one's happiness, in order to get up to town I have always pretended to have a younger brother of the name of Ernest, who lives in the Albany, and gets into the most dreadful scrapes. That, my dear Algy, is the whole truth pure and simple.

ALG The truth is rarely pure and never simple. Modern life would be very tedious if it were either, and modern literature a complete impossibility!

JACK That wouldn't be at all a bad thing.

ALG Literary criticism is, not your forte, my dear fellow. Don't try it.

You should leave that to people who haven't been at a University.

They do it so well in the daily papers. What you really are is a Bunburyist. I was quite right in saying you were a Bunburyist. You are one of the most advanced Bunburyists I know.

JACK What on earth do you mean? ALG You have invented a very useful young brother called Ernest, in order that you may be able to come up to town as often as you like. I have invented an invaluable permanent invalid called Bunbury, in order that I may be able to go down into the country whenever I choose. Bunbury is perfectly invaluable. If it wasn’t for Bunbury’s extraordinary bad health, for instance, I wouldn’t be able to dine with you at Willis’s to-night, for I have been really engaged to Aunt Augusta for more than a week.

JACK I haven’t asked you to dine with me anywhere to-night.

ALG I know. You are absurdly careless about sending out invitations. It is very foolish of you. Nothing annoys people so much as not receiving invitations.

JACK You had much better dine with your Aunt Augusta.

ALG I haven’t the smallest intention of doing anything of the kind. To begin with, I dined there on Monday, and once a week is quite enough to dine with one’s own relations. In the second place, whenever I do dine there I am always treated as a member of the family, and sent down with either no woman at all, or two. In the third place, I know perfectly well whom she will place me next to, to-night. She will place me next to Mary Farquhar, who always flirts with her own husband across the dinner-table. That is not very pleasant. Indeed, it is not even decent... and that sort of thing is enormously on the increase. The amount of women in London who flirt with their own husbands is perfectly scandalous. It looks so bad. It is simply washing one’s clean linen in public. Besides, now that I know you to be a confirmed Bunburyist, I naturally want to talk to you about Bunburying. I want to tell you the rules.

JACK I’m not a Bunburyist at all. If Gwendolen accepts me, I am going to kill my brother, indeed I think I’ll kill him in any case. Cecily is a little too much interested in him. It is rather a bore. So I am going to get rid of Ernest. And I strongly advise you to do the same with Mr.... with your invalid friend who has the absurd name.

ALG Nothing will induce me to part with Bunbury, and if you ever get married, which seems to me extremely problematic, you will be very glad to know Bunbury. A man who marries without knowing Bunbury has a very tedious time of it.

JACK That is nonsense. If I marry a charming girl like Gwendolen, and she is the only girl I ever saw in my life that I would marry, I certainly won’t want to know Bunbury.

ALG Then your wife will. You don’t seem to realize, that in married life three is company and two is none.
JACK

[Sententiously.]

That, my dear young friend, is the theory that the corrupt French Drama has been propounding for the last fifty years.

ALG Yes; and that the happy English home has proved in half the time.

JACK For Heaven’s sake, don’t try to be cynical. It’s perfectly easy to be cynical.

ALG My dear fellow, it isn’t easy to be anything now-a-days. There’s such a lot of beastly competition about.

[The sound of an electric bell is heard.] Ah! that must be Aunt Augusta. Only relatives, or creditors, ever ring in that Wagnerian manner. Now, if I get her out of the way for ten minutes, so that you can have an opportunity for proposing to Gwendolen, may I dine with you to-night at Willis’s? JACK I suppose so, if you want to.

ALG Yes, but you must be serious about it. I hate people who are not serious about meals. It is so shallow of them.

[Enter Lane.]

LANE Lady Bracknell and Miss Fairfax.

[Algernon goes forward to meet them. Enter Lady Bracknell and Gwendolen.]

LADY BRA Good afternoon, dear Algernon. I hope you are behaving very well.

ALG I’m feeling very well, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRA That’s not quite the same thing. In fact the two things rarely go together.

[Sees Jack and bows to him with icy coldness.]

ALG

[To Gwendolen.]

Dear me, you are smart!

GWEN I am always smart! Aren’t I, Mr. Worthing? JACK You are quite perfect, Miss Fairfax.

GWEN Oh! I hope I am not that. It would leave no room for developments, and I intend to develop in many directions.

[Gwendolen and Jack sit down together in the corner.] LADY BRA I’m sorry if we are a little late, Algernon, but I was obliged to call on dear Lady Harbury. I hadn’t been there since her poor husband’s death. I never saw a woman so altered; she looks quite twenty years younger. And now I'll have a cup of tea, and one of those nice cucumber sandwiches you promised me.

ALG Certainly, Aunt Augusta.
[ Goes over to tea-table. ]
LADY BRA Won't you come and sit here, Gwendolen? GWEN
Thanks, mamma, I'm quite comfortable where I am.

ALG
[Picking up empty plate in horror.]
Good Heavens! Lane! Why, are there no cucumber sandwiches? I ordered them specially.

LANE
[ Gravely. ]
There were no cucumbers in the market this morning, sir, I went down twice.
ALG No cucumbers!
LANE No, sir. Not even for ready money.
ALG That will do, Lane, thank you.
LANE Thank you, sir.
ALG I am greatly distressed, Aunt Augusta, about there being no cucumbers, not even for ready money.
LADY BRA It really makes no matter, Algernon. I had some crumpets with Lady Harbury, who seems to me to be living entirely for pleasure now.
ALG I hear her hair has turned quite gold from grief.
LADY BRA It certainly has changed its color. From what cause I, of course, cannot say.

[ Algernon crosses and hands tea. ]
Thank you. I've quite a treat for you to-night, Algernon. I am going to send you down with Mary Farquhar. She is such a nice woman, and so attentive to her husband. It's delightful to watch them.
ALG I am afraid, Aunt Augusta, I shall have to give up the pleasure of dining with you to-night after all.

LADY BRA
[ Frowning. ]
I hope not, Algernon. It would put my table completely out. Your uncle would have to dine upstairs. Fortunately he is accustomed to that.

ALG It’s a great bore, and, I need hardly say, a terrible disappointment to me, but the fact is I have just had a telegram to say that my poor friend Bunbury is very ill again.

[Exchanges glances with Jack.]
They seem to think I should be with him.
LADY BRA It is very strange. This Mr. Bunbury seems to suffer from curiously bad health.
ALG Yes; poor Bunbury is a dreadful invalid.
LADY BRA Well, I must say, Algernon, that I think it is high time that Mr. Bunbury made up his mind whether he was going to live or to die.

This shilly-shallying with the question is absurd. Nor do I in any way approve of the modern sympathy with invalids. I consider it morbid. Illness of any kind is hardly a thing to be encouraged in others. Health is the primary duty of life. I am always telling that to your poor uncle, but he never seems to take much notice... as far as any improvement in his ailments goes. I should be obliged if you would ask Mr. Bunbury, from me, to be kind enough not to have a relapse on Saturday, for I rely on you to arrange my music for me. It is my last reception, and one wants something that will encourage conversation, particularly at the end of the season when everyone has practically said whatever they had to say, which, in most cases, was probably not much.

ALG I’ll speak to Bunbury, Aunt Augusta, if he is still conscious, and I think I can promise you he’ll be all right by Saturday. Of course the music is a great difficulty. You see, if one plays good music, people don’t listen, and if one plays bad music, people don’t talk.

But I’ll run over the programme I’ve drawn out, if you will kindly come into the next room for a moment.
LADY BRA Thank you, Algernon. It is very thoughtful of you.
[ Rising, and following Algernon.]
I’m sure the programme will be delightful, after a few expurgations. French songs I cannot possibly allow. People always seem to think that they are improper, and either look shocked, which is vulgar, or laugh, which is worse. But German sounds a thoroughly respectable language, and indeed, I believe is so. Gwendolen, you will accompany me.
GWEN Certainly, mamma.

[Lady Bracknell and Algernon go into the music-room, Gwendolen remains behind.]

JACK Charming day it has been, Miss Fairfax.

GWEN Pray don’t talk to me about the weather, Mr. Worthing. Whenever people talk to me about the weather, I always feel quite certain that they mean something else. And that makes me so nervous.

JACK I do mean something else.

GWEN I thought so. In fact, I am never wrong.

JACK And I would like to be allowed to take advantage of Lady Bracknell’s temporary absence...

GWEN I would certainly advise you to do so. Mamma has a way of coming back suddenly into a room that I have often had to speak to her about.

JACK

[Nervously.]

Miss Fairfax, ever since I met you I have admired you more than any girl... I have ever met since... I met you.

GWEN Yes, I am quite aware of the fact. And I often wish that in public, at any rate, you had been more demonstrative. For me you have always had an irresistible fascination. Even before I met you I was far from indifferent to you.

[Jack looks at her in amazement.]

We live, as I hope you know, Mr. Worthing, in an age of ideals.

The fact is constantly mentioned in the more expensive monthly magazines, and has reached the provincial pulpits I am told: and my ideal has always been to love some one of the name of Ernest.

There is something in that name that inspires absolute confidence.

The moment Algernon first mentioned to me that he had a friend called Ernest, I knew I was destined to love you.

JACK You really love me, Gwendolen? GWEN Passionately! JACK Darling! You don’t know how happy you’ve made me. GWEN My own Ernest! JACK But you don’t really mean to say that you couldn’t love me if my name wasn’t Ernest? GWEN But your name is Ernest.
JACK Yes, I know it is. But supposing it was something else? Do you mean to say you couldn’t love me then? GWEN

[Glibly.]
Ah! that is clearly a metaphysical speculation, and like most metaphysical speculations has very little reference at all to the actual facts of real life, as we know them.

JACK Personally, darling, to speak quite candidly, I don’t much care about the name of Ernest... I don’t think the name suits me at all.

GWEN It suits you perfectly. It is a divine name. It has a music of its own.

It produces vibrations.

JACK Well, really, Gwendolen, I must say that I think there are lots of other much nicer names. I think Jack, for instance, a charming name.

GWEN Jack?... No, there is very little music in the name Jack, if any at all, indeed. It does not thrill. It produces absolutely no vibrations.... I have known several Jacks, and they all, without exception, were more than usually plain. Besides, Jack is a notorious domesticity for John! And I pity any woman who is married to a man called John. She would probably never be allowed to know the entrancing pleasure of a single moment’s solitude. The only really safe name is Ernest.

JACK Gwendolen, I must get christened at once- I mean we must get married at once. There is no time to be lost.

GWEN Married, Mr. Worthing? JACK

[Astounded.]
Well... surely. You know that I love you, and you led me to believe, Miss Fairfax, that you were not absolutely indifferent to me.

GWEN I adore you. But you haven’t proposed to me yet. Nothing has been said at all about marriage. The subject has not even been touched on.

JACK Well... may I propose to you now? GWEN I think it would be an admirable opportunity. And to spare you any possible disappointment, Mr. Worthing, I think it only fair to tell you quite frankly beforehand that I am fully determined to accept you.
JACK Gwendolen!
GWEN Yes, Mr. Worthing, what have you got to say to me? JACK You know what I have got to say to you.
GWEN Yes, but you don’t say it. JACK Gwendolen, will you marry me? [Goes on his knees.] GWEN Of course I will, darling. How long you have been about it! I am afraid you have had very little experience in how to propose. JACK My own one, I have never loved anyone in the world but you.
GWEN Yes, but men often propose for practice. I know my brother Gerald does. All my girl-friends tell me so. What wonderfully blue eyes you have, Ernest! They are quite, quite blue. I hope you will always look at me just like that, especially when there are other people present.

[Enter Lady Bracknell.] LADY BRA Mr. Worthing! Rise, sir, from this semi-recumbent posture. It is most indecorous. GWEN Mamma! [He tries to rise; she restrains him.] I must beg you to retire. This is no place for you. Besides, Mr. Worthing has not quite finished yet. LADY BRA Finished what, may I ask? GWEN I am engaged to Mr. Worthing, mamma.

[They rise together.] LADY BRA Pardon me, you are not engaged to anyone. When you do become engaged to some one, I, or your father, should his health permit him, will inform you of the fact. An engagement should come on a young girl as a surprise, pleasant or unpleasant, as the case may be. It is hardly a matter that she could be allowed to arrange for herself…. And now I have a few questions to put to you, Mr. Worthing. While I am making these inquiries, you, Gwendolen, will wait for me below in the carriage.

GWEN [Reproachfully.] Mamma! LADY BRA In the carriage, Gwendolen!
[Gwendolen goes to the door. She and Jack blow kisses to each other behind Lady Bracknell’s back. Lady Bracknell looks vaguely about as if she could not understand what the noise was. Finally turns round.]

Gwendolen, the carriage!
GWEN Yes, mamma.
[Goes out, looking back at Jack.]
LADY BRA
[Standing up.]
You can take a seat, Mr. Worthing.
[Looks in her pocket for note-book and pencil.]
JACK Thank you, Lady Bracknell, I prefer standing.

LADY BRA
[Pencil and note-book in hand.]
I feel bound to tell you that you are not down on my list of eligible young men, although I have the same list as the dear Duchess of Bolton has. We work together, in fact. However, I am quite ready to enter your name, should your answers be what a really affectionate mother requires. Do you smoke? JACK Well, yes, I must admit I smoke.

LADY BRA I am glad to hear it. A man should always have an occupation of some kind. There are far too many idle men in London as it is.

How old are you? JACK Twenty-nine.
LADY BRA A very good age to be married at. I have always been of opinion that a man who desires to get married should know either everything or nothing. Which do you know? JACK

[After some hesitation.]
I know nothing, Lady Bracknell.
LADY BRA I am pleased to hear it. I do not approve of anything that tampers with natural ignorance. Ignorance is like a delicate exotic fruit; touch it and the bloom is gone. The whole theory of modern education is radically unsound. Fortunately in England, at any rate, education produces no effect whatsoever. If it did, it would prove a serious danger to the upper classes, and probably lead to acts of violence in Grosvenor Square. What is your income? JACK Between seven and eight thousand a year.

LADY BRA
[Makes a note in her book.]
In land, or in investments? JACK In investments, chiefly.

LADY BRA That is satisfactory. What between the duties expected of one during one's lifetime, and the duties exacted from one after one's death, land has ceased to be either a profit or a pleasure. It gives one position, and prevents one from keeping it up. That's all that can be said about land.

JACK I have a country house with some land, of course, attached to it, about fifteen hundred acres, I believe; but I don't depend on that for my real income. In fact, as far as I can make out, the poachers are the only people who make anything out of it.

LADY BRA A country house! How many bedrooms? Well, that point can be cleared up afterwards. You have a town house, I hope? A girl with a simple, unspoiled nature, like Gwendolen, could hardly be expected to reside in the country.

JACK Well, I own a house in Belgrave Square, but it is let by the year to Lady Bloxham. Of course, I can get it back whenever I like, at six months' notice.

LADY BRA Lady Bloxham? I don't know her.

JACK Oh, she goes about very little. She is a lady considerably advanced in years.

LADY BRA Ah, now-a-days that is no guarantee of respectability of character.

What number in Belgrave Square? JACK 149.

LADY BRA

[Shaking her head.]
The unfashionable side. I thought there was something. However, that could easily be altered.

JACK Do you mean the fashion, or the side? LADY BRA [Sternly.]
Both, if necessary, I presume. What are your politics? JACK Well, I am afraid I really have none. I am a Liberal Unionist.

LADY BRA Oh, they count as Tories. They dine with us. Or come in the evening, at any rate. Now to minor matters. Are your parents living? JACK I have lost both my parents.

LADY BRA Both?... That seems like carelessness. Who was your father? He was evidently a man of some wealth. Was he born in what the Radical papers call the purple of commerce, or did he rise from the ranks of aristocracy?
JACK I am afraid I really don’t know. The fact is, Lady Bracknell, I said I had lost my parents. It would be nearer the truth to say that my parents seem to have lost me.... I don’t actually know who I am by birth. I was well, I was found.

LADY BRA Found!

JACK The late Mr. Thomas Cardew, an old gentleman of a very charitable and kindly disposition, found me, and gave me the name of Worthing, because he happened to have a first-class ticket for Worthing in his pocket at the time. Worthing is a place in Sussex.

It is a seaside resort.

LADY BRA Where did the charitable gentleman who had a first-class ticket for this seaside resort find you? JACK

[Gravely.]

In a hand-bag.

LADY BRA A hand-bag? JACK

[Very seriously.]

Yes, Lady Bracknell. I was in a hand-bag- a somewhat large, black leather hand-bag, with handles to it- an ordinary hand-bag, in fact.

LADY BRA In what locality did this Mr. James, or Thomas, Cardew come across this ordinary hand-bag? JACK In the cloak-room at Victoria Station. It was given to him in mistake for his own.

LADY BRA The cloak-room at Victoria Station? JACK Yes. The Brighton line.

LADY BRA The line is immaterial. Mr. Worthing, I confess I feel somewhat bewildered by what you have just told me. To be born, or at any rate, bred in a hand-bag, whether it had handles or not, seems to me to display a contempt for the ordinary decencies of family life that remind one of the worst excesses of the French Revolution. And I presume you know what that unfortunate movement led to? As for the particular locality in which the handbag was found, a cloakroom at a railway station might serve to conceal a social indiscretion- has probably, indeed, been used for that purpose before now but it could hardly be regarded as an assured basis for a recognized position in good society.

JACK May I ask you then what you would advise me to do? I need hardly say I would do anything in the world to ensure Gwendolen’s happiness.
LADY BRA I would strongly advise you, Mr. Worthing, to try and acquire some relations as soon as possible, and to make a definite effort to produce at any rate one parent, of either sex, before the season is quite over.

JACK I don’t see how I could possibly manage to do that. I can produce the hand-bag at any moment. It is in my dressing-room at home. I really think that should satisfy you, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRA Me, sir! What has it to do with me? You can hardly imagine that I and Lord Bracknell would dream of allowing our only daughter- a girl brought up with the utmost care- to marry into a cloak-room, and form an alliance with a parcel? Good morning, Mr. Worthing!

[Lady Bracknell sweeps out in majestic indignation.]
JACK Good morning!
[Algernon, from the other room, strikes up the Wedding March. Jack looks perfectly furious, and goes to the door.]

For goodness’ sake don’t play that ghastly tune, Algy! How idiotic you are!
[The music stops, and Algernon enters cheerily.]
ALG Didn’t it go off all right, old boy? You don’t mean to say Gwendolen refused you, I know it is a way she has. She is always refusing people. I think it is most ill-natured of her.

JACK Oh, Gwendolen is as right as a trivet. As far as she is concerned, we are engaged. Her mother is perfectly unbearable. Never met such a Gorgon... I don’t really know what a Gorgon is like, but I am quite sure that Lady Bracknell is one. In any case, she is a monster, without being a myth, which is rather unfair... I beg your pardon, Algy, I suppose I shouldn’t talk about your own aunt in that way before you.

ALG My dear boy, I love hearing my relations abused. It is the only thing that makes me put up with them at all. Relations are simply a tedious pack of people who haven’t got the remotest knowledge of how to live, nor the smallest instinct about when to die.

JACK Oh, that is nonsense!
ALG It isn’t!
JACK Well, I won’t argue about the matter. You always want to argue about things.
ALG That is exactly what things were originally made for.
JACK Upon my word, if I thought that, I’d shoot myself...
[A pause.]
You don’t think there is any chance of Gwendolen becoming like her mother in about a hundred and fifty years, do you, Algy? ALG All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That’s his.

JACK Is that clever? ALG It is perfectly phrased! and quite as true as any observation in civilized life should be.

JACK I am sick to death of cleverness. Everybody is clever now-a-days.

You can’t go anywhere without meeting clever people. The thing has become an absolute public nuisance. I wish to goodness we had a few fools left.

ALG We have.

JACK I should extremely like to meet them. What do they talk about? ALG The fools? Oh! about the clever people, of course.

JACK What fools!

ALG By the way, did you tell Gwendolen the truth about your being Ernest in town, and Jack in the country? JACK

[In a very patronising manner.]
My dear fellow, the truth isn’t quite the sort of thing one tells to a nice sweet refined girl. What extraordinary ideas you have about the way to behave to a woman!

ALG The only way to behave to a woman is to make love to her, if she is pretty, and to someone else if she is plain.

JACK Oh, that is nonsense.

ALG What about your brother? What about the profligate Ernest? JACK Oh, before the end of the week I shall have got rid of him. I’ll say he died in Paris of apoplexy. Lots of people die of apoplexy, quite suddenly, don’t they? ALG Yes, but it’s hereditary, my dear fellow. It’s a sort of thing that runs in families. You had much better say a severe chill.

JACK You are sure a severe chill isn’t hereditary, or anything of that kind?

ALG Of course it isn’t!
JACK Very well, then. My poor brother Ernest is carried off suddenly in Paris, by a severe chill. That gets rid of him.

ALG But I thought you said that... Miss Cardew was a little too much interested in your poor brother, Ernest? Won't she feel his loss a good deal? JACK Oh, that is all right. Cecily is not a silly romantic girl, I am glad to say. She has got a capital appetite, goes long walks, and pays no attention at all to her lessons.

ALG I would rather like to see Cecily.

JACK I will take very good care you never do. She is excessively pretty, and she is only just eighteen.

ALG Have you told Gwendolen yet that you have an excessively pretty ward who is only just eighteen? JACK Oh! one doesn’t blurt these things out to people. Cecily, and Gwendolen are perfectly certain to be extremely great friends. I’ll bet you anything you like that half an hour after they have met, they will be calling each other sister.

ALG Women only do that when they have called each other a lot of other things first. Now, my dear boy, if we want to get a good table at Willis’s, we really must go and dress. Do you know it is nearly seven? JACK [Irritably.] Oh! it always is nearly seven.

ALG Well, I’m hungry.

JACK I never knew you when you weren’t....

ALG What shall we do after dinner? Go to the theatre? JACK Oh no! I loathe listening.

ALG Well, let us go to the club? JACK Oh no! I hate talking.

ALG Well, we might trot round to the Empire at ten? JACK Oh no! I can’t bear looking at things. It is so silly.

ALG Well, what shall we do? JACK Nothing!

ALG It is awfully hard work doing nothing. However, I don’t mind hard work where there is no definite object of any kind.

[Enter Lane.]
LANE Miss Fairfax.

[Enter Gwendolen. Lane goes out.]

ALG Gwendolen, upon my word!

GWEN Algy, kindly turn your back. I have something very particular to say to Mr. Worthing.

ALG Really, Gwendolen, I don’t think I can allow this at all.
GWEN  Algy, you always adopt a strictly immoral attitude towards life.
You are not quite old enough to do that.
Algernon retires to the fireplace.
JACK  My own darling!
GWEN  Ernest, we may never be married. From the expression on mamma’s face I fear we never shall. Few parents now-a-days pay any regard to what their children say to them. The old-fashioned respect for the young is fast dying out. Whatever influence I ever had over mamma, I lost at the age of three. But although she may prevent us from becoming man and wife, and I may marry someone else, and marry often, nothing that she can possibly do can alter my eternal devotion to you.

JACK  Dear Gwendolen!
GWEN  The story of your romantic origin, as related to me by mamma, with unpleasing comments, has naturally stirred the deeper fibres of my nature. Your Christian name has an irresistible fascination.
The simplicity of your character makes you exquisitely incomprehensible to me. Your town address at the Albany I have.
What is your address in the country?
JACK  The Manor House, Woolton, Hertfordshire.
[Algernon, who has been carefully listening, smiles to himself, and writes the address on his shirt-cuff. Then picks up the Railway Guide.]
GWEN  There is a good postal service, I suppose? It may be necessary to do something desperate. That of course will require serious consideration. I will communicate with you daily.
JACK  My own one!
GWEN  How long do you remain in town? JACK  Till Monday.
GWEN  Good! Algy, you may turn round now.
ALG  Thanks, I’ve turned round already.
GWEN  You may also ring the bell.
JACK  You will let me see you to your carriage, my own darling?
GWEN  Certainly.

JACK
[To Lane, who now enters.]
I will see Miss Fairfax out.
LANE  Yes, sir.
Jack and Gwendolen go off.
Lane presents several letters on a salver to Algernon. It is to be surmised that they are bills, as Algernon, after looking at the envelopes, tears them up.

Algernon (to Lane): A glass of sherry, Lane.
Lane: Yes, sir.
Algernon: To-morrow, Lane, I’m going Bunburying.
Lane: Yes, sir.
Algernon: I shall probably not be back till Monday. You can put up my dress clothes, my smoking jacket, and all the Bunbury suits....
Lane: Yes, sir.
 Algernon (handing sherry): I hope to-morrow will be a fine day, Lane.
Lane: It never is, sir.
Algernon: Lane, you’re a perfect pessimist.
Lane: I do my best to give satisfaction, sir.
[Enter Jack. Lane goes off.]
Jack: There’s a sensible, intellectual girl! the only girl I ever cared for in my life.

Algernon (to Jack): What on earth are you so amused at? Algernon: Oh, I’m a little anxious about poor Bunbury, that is all.
Jack: If you don’t take care, your friend Bunbury will get you into a serious scrape some day.
Algernon: I love scrapes. They are the only things that are never serious.
Jack: Oh, that’s nonsense, Algy. You never talk anything but nonsense.
Algernon: Nobody ever does.
[Jack looks indignantly at him, leaves the room. Algernon lights a cigarette, reads his shirt-cuff, and smiles.]

SECOND ACT

Scene- Garden at the Manor House. A flight of gray stone steps leads up to the house. The garden, an old-fashioned one, full of roses. Time of year, July. Basket chairs, and a table covered with books, are set under a large yew tree. [Miss Prism discovered seated at the table. Cecily is at the back watering flowers.]
MISS PRI

[Calling.]

Cecily, Cecily! Surely such a utilitarian occupation as the watering of flowers is rather Moulton's duty than yours? Especially at a moment when intellectual pleasures await you. Your German grammar is on the table. Pray open it at page fifteen. We will repeat yesterday's lesson.

CEC

[Coming over very slowly.]

But I don't like German. It isn't at all a becoming language. I know perfectly well that I look quite plain after my German lesson.

MISS PRI Child, you know how anxious your guardian is that you should improve yourself in every way. He laid particular stress on your German, as he was leaving for town yesterday. Indeed, he always lays stress on your German when he is leaving for town.

CEC Dear Uncle Jack is so very serious! Sometimes he is so serious that I think he cannot be quite well.

MISS PRI

[Drawing herself up.]

Your guardian enjoys the best of health, and his gravity of demeanour is especially to be commended in one so comparatively young as he is. I know no one who has a higher sense of duty and responsibility.

CEC I suppose that is why he often looks a little bored when we three are together.

MISS PRI Cecily! I am surprised at you. Mr. Worthing has many troubles in his life. Idle merriment and triviality would be out of place in his conversation. You must remember his constant anxiety about that unfortunate young man his brother.

CEC I wish Uncle Jack would allow that unfortunate young man, his brother, to come down here sometimes. We might have a good influence over him, Miss Prism. I am sure you certainly would. You know German, and geology, and things of that kind influence a man very much.

[Cecily begins to write in her diary.]

MISS PRI

[Shaking her head.]
I do not think that even I could produce any effect on a character that according to his own brother’s admission is irretrievably weak and vacillating. Indeed I am not sure that I would desire to reclaim him. I am not in favour of this modern mania for turning bad people into good people at a moment’s notice. As a man sows so let him reap. You must put away your diary, Cecily. I really don’t see why you should keep a diary at all.

CEC I keep a diary in order to enter the wonderful secrets of my life. If I didn’t write them down I should probably forget all about them.

MISS PRI Memory, my dear Cecily, is the diary that we all carry about with us.

CEC Yes, but it usually chronicles the things that have never happened, and couldn’t possibly have happened. I believe that Memory is responsible for nearly all the three-volume novels that Mudie sends us.

MISS PRI Do not speak slightly of the three-volume novel, Cecily. I wrote one myself in earlier days.

CEC Did you really, Miss Prism? How wonderfully clever you are! I hope it did not end happily? I don’t like novels that end happily. They depress me so much.

MISS PRI The good ended happily, and the bad unhappily. That is what Fiction means.

CEC I suppose so. But it seems very unfair. And was your novel ever published? MISS PRI Alas! no. The manuscript unfortunately was abandoned. I use the word in the sense of lost or mislaid. To your work, child, these speculations are profitless.

CEC [Smiling.] But I see dear Dr. Chasuble coming up through the garden.

MISS PRI [Rising and advancing.] Dr. Chasuble! This is indeed a pleasure. [Enter Canon Chasuble.] CHAS And how are we this morning? Miss Prism, you are, I trust, well? CEC Miss Prism has just been complaining of a slight headache. I think it would do her so much good to have a short stroll with you in the Park, Dr. Chasuble.
MISS PRI Cecily, I have not mentioned anything about a headache.

CEC No, dear Miss Prism, I know that, but I felt instinctively that you had a headache. Indeed I was thinking about that, and not about my German lesson, when the Rector came in.

CHAS I hope Cecily, you are not inattentive.

CEC Oh, I am afraid I am.

CHAS That is strange. Were I fortunate enough to be Miss Prism’s pupil, I would hang upon her lips.

[Miss Prism glares.]

I spoke metaphorically. My metaphor was drawn from bees.

Ahem! Mr. Worthing, I suppose, has not returned from town yet?

MISS PRI We do not expect him till Monday afternoon.

CHAS Ah yes, he usually likes to spend his Sunday in London. He is not one of those whose sole aim is enjoyment, as, by all accounts, that unfortunate young man his brother seems to be. But I must not disturb Egeria and her pupil any longer.

MISS PRI Egeria? My name is Laetitia, Doctor.

CHAS

[Bowing.]

A classical allusion merely, drawn from the Pagan authors. I shall see you both no doubt at Evensong? MISS PRI I think, dear Doctor, I will have a stroll with you. I find I have a headache after all, and a walk might do it good.

CHAS With pleasure, Miss Prism, with pleasure. We might go as far as the schools and back.

MISS PRI That would be delightful. Cecily, you will read your Political Economy in my absence. The chapter on the Fall of the Rupee you may omit. It is somewhat too sensational. Even these metallic problems have their melodramatic side.

[Goes down the garden with Dr. Chasuble.]

CEC

[Picks up books and throws them back on table.]

Horrid Political Economy! Horrid Geography! Horrid, horrid German!

[Enter Merriman with a card on a salver.]

MERR Mr. Ernest Worthing has just driven over from the station. He has brought his luggage with him.
CEC
[Takes the card and reads it.]

“Mr. Ernest Worthing, B. 4 The Albany, W.” Uncle Jack’s brother! Did you tell him Mr. Worthing was in town? MERR Yes, Miss. He seemed very much disappointed. I mentioned that you and Miss Prism were in the garden. He said he was anxious to speak to you privately for a moment.

CEC Ask Mr. Ernest Worthing to come here. I suppose you had better talk to the housekeeper about a room for him.

MERR Yes, Miss.
[Merriman goes off.]
CEC I have never met any really wicked person before. I feel rather frightened. I am so afraid he will look just like everyone else.

[Enter Algernon, very gay and debonnair.]
He does!

ALG
[Raising his hat.]
You are my little cousin Cecily, I’m sure.
CEC You are under some strange mistake. I am not little. In fact, I believe I am more than usually tall for my age.

[Algernon is rather taken aback.]
But I am your cousin Cecily. You, I see from your card, are Uncle Jack’s brother, my cousin Ernest, my wicked cousin Ernest.
ALG Oh! I am not really wicked at all, Cousin Cecily. You mustn’t think that I am wicked.
CEC If you are not, then you have certainly been deceiving us all in a very inexcusable manner. I hope you have not been leading a double life, pretending to be wicked and being really good all the time. That would be hypocrisy.

ALG
[Looks at her in amazement.]
Oh! Of course I have been rather reckless.
CEC I am glad to hear it.
ALG In fact, now you mention the subject, I have been very bad in my own small way.
CEC I don’t think you should be so proud of that, though I am sure it must have been very pleasant.
ALG It is much pleasanter being here with you.
CEC I can’t understand how you are here at all. Uncle Jack won’t be back till Monday afternoon.
ALG That is a great disappointment. I am obliged to go up by the first train on Monday morning. I have a business appointment that I am anxious... to miss.
CEC Couldn’t you miss it anywhere but in London? ALG No: the appointment is in London.
CEC Well, I know, of course, how important it is not to keep a business engagement, if one wants to retain any sense of the beauty of life, but still I think you had better wait till Uncle Jack arrives. I know he wants to speak to you about your emigrating.
ALG About my what? CEC Your emigrating. He has gone up to buy your outfit.
ALG I certainly wouldn’t let Jack buy my outfit. He has no taste in neckties at all.
CEC I don’t think you will require neckties. Uncle Jack is sending you to Australia.
ALG Australia? I’d sooner die.
CEC Well, he said at dinner on Wednesday night, that you would have to choose between this world, the next world, and Australia.
ALG Oh, well! The accounts I have received of Australia and the next world are not particularly encouraging. This world is good enough for me, Cousin Cecily.
CEC Yes, but are you good enough for it? ALG I’m afraid I’m not that. That is why I want you to reform me. You might make that your mission, if you don’t mind, Cousin Cecily.
CEC I’m afraid I’ve no time, this afternoon.
ALG Well, would you mind my reforming myself this afternoon? CEC It is rather Quixotic of you. But I think you should try.
ALG I will. I feel better already.
CEC You are looking a little worse.
ALG That is because I am hungry.
CEC How thoughtless of me. I should have remembered that when one is going to lead an entirely new life, one requires regular and wholesome meals. Won’t you come in? ALG Thank you. Might I have a buttonhole first? I never have any appetite unless I have a buttonhole first.

CEC A Marechale Niel?
[Picks up scissors.]
ALG No, I’d sooner have a pink rose.
CEC Why?
[Cuts a flower.]
ALG Because you are like a pink rose, Cousin Cecily.
CEC I don’t think it can be right for you to talk to me like that. Miss Prism never says such things to me.
ALG Then Miss Prism is a shortsighted old lady.
[ Cecily puts the rose in his buttonhole.]
You are the prettiest girl I ever saw.
CEC Miss Prism says that all good looks are a snare.
ALG They are a snare that every sensible man would like to be caught in.
CEC Oh! I don’t think I would care to catch a sensible man. I shouldn’t know what to talk to him about.

[They pass into the house. Miss Prism and Dr. Chasuble return.]
MISS PRI You are too much alone, dear Dr. Chasuble. You should get married. A misanthrope I can understand—a womanthrope, never!

CHAS [With a scholar’s shudder.]
Believe me, I do not deserve so neologistic a phrase. The precept as well as the practice of the Primitive Church was distinctly against matrimony.

MISS PRI [Sententiously.]
That is obviously the reason why the Primitive Church has not lasted up to the present day. And you do not seem to realize, dear Doctor, that by persistently remaining single, a man converts himself into a permanent public temptation. Men should be more careful; this very celibacy leads weaker vessels astray.
CHAS But is a man not equally attractive when married? MISS PRI No married man is ever attractive except to his wife.
CHAS And often, I’ve been told, not even to her.
MISS PRI That depends on the intellectual sympathies of the woman. Maturity can always be depended on. Ripeness can be trusted. Young women are green.

[Dr. Chasuble starts.]
I spoke horticulturally. My metaphor was drawn from fruits. But where is Cecily?

CHAS Perhaps she followed us to the schools.

[Enter Jack slowly from the back of the garden. He is dressed in the deepest mourning, with crape hatband and black gloves.]

MISS PRI Mr. Worthing!
CHAS Mr. Worthing!
MISS PRI This is indeed a surprise. We did not look for you till Monday afternoon.

JACK
[Shakes Miss Prism’s hand in a tragic manner.]
I have returned sooner than I expected. Dr. Chasuble, I hope you are well? CHAS Dear Mr. Worthing, I trust this garb of woe does not betoken some terrible calamity?

JACK My brother.
MISS PRI More shameful debts and extravagance? CHAS Still leading his life of pleasure? JACK [Shaking his head.]
Dead!
CHAS Your brother Ernest dead? JACK Quite dead.
MISS PRI What a lesson for him! I trust he will profit by it.
CHAS Mr. Worthing, I offer you my sincere condolence. You have at least the consolation of knowing that you were always the most generous and forgiving of brothers.

JACK Poor Ernest! He had many faults, but it is a sad, sad blow.

CHAS Very sad indeed. Were you with him at the end? JACK No. He died abroad; in Paris, in fact. I had a telegram last night from the manager of the Grand Hotel.

CHAS Was the cause of death mentioned? JACK A severe chill, it seems.

MISS PRI. As a man sows, so shall he reap.
CHARITY, dear Miss Prism, charity! None of us are perfect. I myself am peculiarly susceptible to draughts. Will the interment take place here?

JACK No. He seemed to have expressed a desire to be buried in Paris.

CHARITY In Paris!

[Shakes his head.]

I fear that hardly points to any very serious state of mind at the last. You would no doubt wish me to make some slight allusion to this tragic domestic affliction next Sunday.

[Jack presses his hand convulsively.]

My sermon on the meaning of the manna in the wilderness can be adapted to almost any occasion, joyful, or, as in the present case, distressing.

[All sigh.]

I have preached it at harvest celebrations, christenings, confirmations, on days of humiliation and festal days. The last time I delivered it was in the Cathedral, as a charity sermon on behalf of the Society for the Prevention of Discontent among the Upper Orders.

The Bishop, who was present, was much struck by some of the analogies I drew.

JACK Ah! that reminds me, you mentioned christenings, I think, Dr. Chasuble? I suppose you know how to christen all right?

[Dr. Chasuble looks astounded.]

I mean, of course, you are continually christening, aren’t you? MISS PRI It is, I regret to say, one of the Rector’s most constant duties in this parish. I have often spoken to the poorer classes on the subject.

But they don’t seem to know what thrift is.

CHARITY But is there any particular infant in whom you are interested, Mr.

Worthing? Your brother was, I believe, unmarried, was he not?

JACK Oh yes.
MISS. PRI.
[Bitterly.]
People who live entirely for pleasure usually are.
JACK But it is not for any child, dear Doctor. I am very fond of children.
No! the fact is, I would like be christened myself, this afternoon, if you have nothing better to do.
CHAS But surely, Mr. Worthing, you have been christened already? JACK I don’t remember anything about it.
CHAS But have you any grave doubts on the subject? JACK I certainly intend to have. Of course I don’t know if the thing would bother you in any way, or if you think I am a little too old now.
CHAS Not at all. The sprinkling, and, indeed, the immersion of adults is a perfectly canonical practice.

JACK Immersion!
CHAS You need have no apprehensions. Sprinkling is all that is necessary, or indeed I think advisable. Our weather is so changeable. At what hour would you wish the ceremony performed? JACK Oh, I might trot round about five if that would suit you.
CHAS Perfectly, perfectly! In fact I have two similar ceremonies to perform at that time. A case of twins that occurred recently in one of the outlying cottages on your own estate. Poor Jenkins the carter, a most hard-working man.
JACK Oh! I don’t see much fun in being christened along with other babies. It would be childish. Would half-past five do? CHAS Admirably! Admirably!

[Takes out watch.]
And now, dear Mr. Worthing, I will not intrude any longer into a house of sorrow. I would merely beg you not to be too much bowed down by grief. What seem to us bitter trials are often blessings in disguise.
MISS PRI This seems to me a blessing of an extremely obvious kind.

[Enter Cecily from the house.]
CEC Uncle Jack! Oh, I am pleased to see you back. But what horrid clothes you have got on! Do go and change them.
MISS PRI Cecily!
CHAS My child! my child!
[Cecily goes towards Jack; he kisses her brow in a melancholy manner.]
CEC What is the matter, Uncle Jack? Do look happy! You look as if you had a toothache, and I have got such a surprise for you. Who do you think is in the dining-room? Your brother!
JACK Who?
CEC Your brother Ernest. He arrived about half an hour ago.
JACK What nonsense! I haven’t got a brother!
CEC Oh, don’t say that. However badly he may have behaved to you in the past he is still your brother. You couldn’t be so heartless as to disown him. I’ll tell him to come out. And you will shake hands with him, won’t you, Uncle Jack?
[Runs back into the house.]
CHAS These are very joyful tidings.
MISS PRI After we had all been resigned to his loss, his sudden return seems me peculiarly distressing.
JACK My brother is in the dining-room? I don’t know what it all means. I think it is perfectly absurd.

[Enter Algernon and Cecily hand in hand. They come slowly up to Jack.]
JACK Good Heavens!
Motions Algernon away.]
ALG Brother John, I have come down from town to tell you that I am very sorry for all the trouble I have given you, and that I intend to lead a better life in the future.

[Jack glares at him and does not take his hand.]
CEC Uncle Jack, you are not going to refuse your own brother’s hand? JACK Nothing will induce me to take his hand. I think his coming down here disgraceful. He knows perfectly well why.
CEC Uncle Jack, do be nice. There is some good in one everyone. Ernest has been telling me about his poor invalid friend Mr. Bunbury whom he goes to visit so often. And surely there must be much good in one who is kind to an invalid, and leaves the pleasures of London to sit by a bed of pain.
JACK Oh! he has been talking about Bunbury, has he? CEC Yes, he has told me all about poor Mr. Bunbury, and his terrible state of health.
JACK Bunbury! Well, I won’t have him talk to you about Bunbury or about anything else. It is enough to drive one perfectly frantic.

ALG Of course I admit that the faults were all on my side. But I must say that I think Brother John’s coldness to me is peculiarly painful.

I expected a more enthusiastic welcome, especially considering it is the first time I have come here.

CEC Uncle Jack, if you don’t shake hands with Ernest, I will never forgive you.

JACK Never forgive me?

CEC Never, never, never!

JACK Well, this is the last time I shall ever do it.

[Shakes hands with Algernon and glares.]

CHAS It is pleasant, is it not, to see so perfect a reconciliation? I think we might leave the two brothers together.

MISS PRI Cecily, you will come with us.

CEC Certainly, Miss Prism. My little task of reconciliation is over.

CHAS You have done a beautiful action to-day, dear child.

MISS PRI We must not be premature in our judgments.

CEC I feel very happy.

[They all go off.]

JACK You young scoundrel, Algy, you must get out of this place as soon as possible. I don’t allow any Bunburying here.

[Enter Merriman.]

MERR I have put Mr. Ernest’s things in the room next to yours, sir. I suppose that is all right? JACK What? MERR Mr. Ernest’s luggage, sir. I have unpacked it and put it in the room next to your own.

JACK His luggage? MERR Yes, sir. Three portmanteaus, a dressing-case, two hat boxes, and a large luncheon-basket.

ALG I am afraid I can’t stay more than a week this time.

JACK Merriman, order the dog-cart at once. Mr. Ernest has been suddenly called back to town.

MERR Yes, sir.

[Goes back into the house.]

ALG What a fearful liar you are, Jack. I have not been called back to town at all.

JACK Yes, you have.

ALG I haven’t heard anyone call me.

JACK Your duty as a gentleman calls you back.
ALG My duty as a gentleman has never interfered with my pleasures in the smallest degree.
JACK I can quite understand that.
ALG Well, Cecily is a darling.
JACK You are not to talk of Miss Cardew like that. I don’t like it.
ALG Well, I don’t like your clothes. You look perfectly ridiculous in them. Why on earth don’t you go up and change? It is perfectly childish to be in deep mourning for a man who is actually staying for a whole week with you in your house as a guest. I call it grotesque.
JACK You are certainly not staying with me for a whole week as a guest or anything else. You have got to leave... by the four-five train.
ALG I certainly won’t leave you so long as you are in mourning. It would be most unfriendly. If I were in mourning you would stay with me, I suppose. I should think it very unkind if you didn’t.
JACK Well, will you go if I change my clothes? ALG Yes, if you are not too long. I never saw anybody take so long to dress, and with such little result.
JACK Well, at any rate, that is better than being always over-dressed as you are.
ALG If I am occasionally a little over-dressed, I make up for it by being always immensely over-educated.
JACK Your vanity is ridiculous, your conduct an outrage, and your presence in my garden utterly absurd. However, you have got to catch the four-five, and I hope you will have a pleasant journey back to town. This Bunburying, as you call it, has not been a great success for you.

[Goes into the house.]
ALG I think it has been a great success. I’m in love with Cecily, and that is everything.
[Enter Cecily at the back of the garden. She picks up the can and begins to water the flowers.]
But I must see her before I go, and make arrangements for another Bunbury. Ah, there she is.
CEC Oh, I merely came back to water the roses. I thought you were with Uncle Jack.
ALG He’s gone to order the dog-cart for me.
CEC  Oh, is he going to take you for a nice drive?  ALG  He's going to send me away.
CEC  Then have we got to part?
ALG  I am afraid so. It's very painful parting.
CEC  It is always painful to part from people whom one has known for a very brief space of time. The absence of old friends one can endure with equanimity. But even a momentary separation from anyone to whom one has just been introduced is almost unbearable.

ALG  Thank you.
[Enter Merriman.]
MERR  The dog-cart is at the door, sir.
[Algernon looks appealingly at Cecily.]
CEC  It can wait, Merriman... for... five minutes.
MERR  Yes, Miss.
[Exit Merriman.]
ALG  I hope, Cecily, I shall not offend you if I state quite frankly and openly that you seem to me to be in every way the visible personification of absolute perfection.

CEC  I think your frankness does you great credit, Ernest. If you will allow me I will copy your remarks into my diary.

[Goes over to table and begins writing in diary.]
ALG  Do you really keep a diary? I'd give anything to look at it. May I?  CEC  Oh no.

[Puts her hand over it.]
You see, it is simply a very young girl's record of her own thoughts and impressions, and consequently meant for publication.

When it appears in volume form I hope you will order a copy. But pray, Ernest, don't stop. I delight in taking down from dictation. I have reached "absolute perfection." You can go on. I am quite ready for more.

ALG  [Somewhat taken aback.]
Ahem! Ahem!
CEC  Oh, don't cough, Ernest. When one is dictating one should speak fluently and not cough. Besides, I don't know how to spell a cough.

[Writes as Algernon speaks.]
[Speaking very rapidly.]
Cecily, ever since I first looked upon your wonderful and incomparable beauty, I have dared to love you wildly, passionately, devotedly, hopelessly.

CEC I don’t think that you should tell me that you love me wildly, passionately, devotedly, hopelessly. Hopelessly doesn’t seem to make much sense, does it?

ALG Cecily!

[Enter Merriman.]
MERR The dog-cart is waiting, sir.
ALG Tell it to come round next week, at the same hour.

CEC Uncle Jack would be very much annoyed if he knew you were staying on till next week, at the same hour.

ALG Oh, I don’t care about Jack. I don’t care for anybody in the whole world but you. I love you, Cecily. You will marry me, won’t you?

CEC You silly boy! Of course. Why, we have been engaged for the last three months.

ALG For the last three months? CEC Yes, it will be exactly, three months on Thursday. ALG But how did we become engaged? CEC Well, ever since dear Uncle Jack first confessed to us that he had a younger brother who was very wicked and bad, you of course have formed the chief topic of conversation between myself and Miss Prism. And of course a man who is much talked about is always very attractive. One feels there must be something in him after all.

I daresay it was foolish of me, but I fell in love with you, Ernest.

ALG Darling! And when was the engagement actually settled?
CEC On the 14th of February last. Worn out by your entire ignorance of my existence, I determined to end the matter one way or the other, and after a long struggle with myself I accepted you under this dear told tree here. The next day I bought this little ring in your name, and this is the little bangle with the true lovers’ knot I promised you always to wear.
ALG Did I give you this? It’s very pretty, isn’t it? CEC Yes, you’ve wonderfully good taste, Ernest. It’s the excuse I’ve always given for your leading such a bad life. And this is the box in which I keep all your dear letters.

[Kneels at table, opens box, and produces letters tied up with blue ribbon.]

ALG My letters! But my own sweet Cecily, I have never written you any letters.

CEC You need hardly remind me of that, Ernest. I remember only too well that I was forced to write your letters for you. I always wrote three times a week, and sometimes oftener.

ALG Oh, do let me read them, Cecily?

CEC Oh, I couldn’t possibly. They would make you far too conceited.

[Replaces box.]

The three you wrote me after I had broken off the engagement are so beautiful, and so badly spelled, that even now I can hardly read them without crying a little.

ALG But was our engagement ever broken off? CEC Of course it was. On the 22nd of last March. You can see the entry if you like.

[Shows diary.]

“To-day I broke off my engagement with Ernest. I feel it is better to do so. The weather still continues charming.” ALG But why on earth did you break it off? What had I done? I had done nothing at all. Cecily, I am very much hurt indeed to hear you broke it off. Particularly when the weather was so charming.

CEC It would hardly have been a really serious engagement if it hadn’t been broken off at least once. But I forgave you before the week was out.

ALG [Crossing to her, and kneeling.]

What a perfect angel you are, Cecily. CEC You dear romantic boy. [He kisses her, she puts her fingers through his hair.] I hope your hair curls naturally, does it? ALG Yes, darling, with a little help from others.
CEC I am so glad.
ALG You'll never break off our engagement again, Cecily?
CEC I don't think I could break it off now that I have actually met you.
Besides, of course, there is the question of your name.
ALG Yes, of course.
[Nervously.]
CEC You must not laugh at me, darling, but it had always been a girlish dream of mine to love some one whose name was Ernest.

[Algernon rises, Cecily also.]
There is something in that name that seems to inspire absolute confidence. I pity any poor married woman whose husband is not called Ernest.

ALG But, my dear child, do you mean to say you could not love me if I had some other name? CEC But what name?

ALG Oh, any name you like- Algernon- for instance...
CEC But I don't like the name of Algernon.
ALG Well, my own dear, sweet, loving little darling, I really can't see why you should object to the name of Algernon. It is not at all a bad name. In fact, it is rather an aristocratic name. Half of the chaps who get into the Bankruptcy Court are called Algernon. But seriously, Cecily...

[Moving to her.]
...if my name was Algy, couldn't you love me? CEC
[Rising.]
I might respect you, Ernest, I might admire your character, but I fear that I should not be able to give you my undivided attention.

ALG Ahem! Cecily!
[Picking up hat.]
Your Rector here is, I suppose, thoroughly experienced in the practice of all the rites and ceremonials of the Church? CEC Oh, yes. Dr. Chasuble is a most learned man. He has never written a single book, so you can imagine how much he knows.

ALG I must see him at once on a most important christening- I mean on most important business.
CEC Oh!
ALG I sha’n’t be away more than half an hour.
CEC Considering that we have been engaged since February the 14th, and that I only met you to-day for the first time, I think it is rather hard that you should leave me for so long a period as half an hour.

Couldn’t you make it twenty minutes?
ALG I’ll be back in no time.
[Kisses her and rushes down the garden.]
CEC What an impetuous boy he is! I like his hair so much. I must enter his proposal in my diary.

[Enter Merriman.]
MERR A Miss Fairfax has just called to see Mr. Worthing. On very important business Miss Fairfax states.

CEC Isn’t Mr. Worthing in his library? MERR Mr. Worthing went over in the direction of the Rectory some time ago.

CEC Pray ask the lady to come out here; Mr. Worthing is sure to be back soon. And you can bring tea.
MERR Yes, Miss.
[Goes out.]CEC Miss Fairfax! I suppose one of the many good elderly women who are associated with Uncle Jack in some of his philanthropic work in London. I don’t quite like women who are interested in philanthropic work. I think it is so forward of them.

[Enter Merriman.]
MERR Miss Fairfax.
[Enter Gwendolen.]
[Exit Merriman.]
CEC [Advancing to meet her.] Pray let me introduce myself to you. My name is Cecily Cardew.
GWEN Cecily Cardew?
[Moving to her and shaking hands.] What a very sweet name! Something tells me that we are going to be great friends. I like you already more than I can say. My first impressions of people are never wrong.

CEC How nice of you to like me so much after we have known each other such a comparatively short time. Pray sit down.

GWEN [Still standing up.] I may call you Cecily, may I not? CEC With pleasure!
GWEN And you will always call me Gwendolen, won’t you? CEC If you wish.
GWEN Then that is all quite settled, is it not?
CEC I hope so.
[A pause. They both sit down together.]
GWEN Perhaps this might be a favourable opportunity for my mentioning who I am. My father is Lord Bracknell. You have never heard of papa, I suppose? CEC I don't think so.
GWEN Outside the family circle, papa, I am glad to say, is entirely unknown. I think that is quite as it should be. The home seems to me to be the proper sphere for the man. And certainly once a man begins to neglect his domestic duties he becomes painfully effeminate, does he not? And I don't like that. It makes men so very attractive. Cecily, mamma, whose views on education are remarkably strict, has brought me up to be extremely short-sighted; it is part of her system; so do you mind my looking at you through my glasses?
CEC Oh! not at all, Gwendolen. I am very fond of being looked at.

GWEN
[After examining Cecily carefully through a lorgnette.]
You are here on a short visit, I suppose.
CEC Oh no! I live here.

GWEN
[Severely.]
Really? Your mother, no doubt, or some female relative of advanced years, resides here also? CEC Oh no! I have no mother, nor, in fact, any relations.
GWEN Indeed? CEC My dear guardian, with the assistance of Miss Prism, has the arduous task of looking after me.
GWEN Your guardian? CEC Yes, I am Mr. Worthing's ward.
GWEN Oh! It is strange he never mentioned to me that he had a ward.
How secretive of him! He grows more interesting hourly. I am not sure, however, that the news inspires me with feelings of unmixed delight.

[Rising and going to her.]
I am very fond of you, Cecily; I have liked you ever since I met you! But I am bound to state that now that I know that you are Mr. Worthing's ward, I cannot help expressing a wish you were-just a little older than you seem to be— and not quite so very alluring in appearance. In fact, if I may speak candidly—

CEC Pray do! I think that whenever one has anything unpleasant to say, one should always be quite candid.

GWEN Well, to speak with perfect candour, Cecily, I wish that you were fully forty-two, and more than usually plain for your age. Ernest has a strong, upright nature. He is the very soul of truth and honour. Disloyalty would be as impossible to him as deception. But even men of the noblest possible moral character are extremely susceptible to the influence of the physical charms of others. Modern, no less than Ancient History, supplies us with many most painful examples of what I refer to. If it were not so, indeed, History would be quite unreadable.

CEC I beg your pardon, Gwendolen, did you say Ernest? GWEN Yes.

CEC Oh, but it is not Mr. Ernest Worthing who is my guardian. It is his brother—his elder brother.

GWEN [Sitting down again.]
Ernest never mentioned to me that he had a brother.

CEC I am sorry to say they have not been on good terms for a long time.

GWEN Ah! that accounts for it. And now that I think of it I have never heard any man mention his brother. The subject seems distasteful to most men. Cecily, you have lifted a load from my mind. I was growing almost anxious. It would have been terrible if any cloud had come across a friendship like ours, would it not? Of course you are quite, quite sure that it is not Mr. Ernest Worthing who is your guardian? CEC Quite sure.

[A pause.]
In fact, I am going to be his.

GWEN [Enquiringly.]
I beg your pardon?

CEC [Rather shy and confidingly.]
Dearest Gwendolen, there is no reason why I should make a secret of it to you. Our little county newspaper is sure to chronicle the fact next week. Mr. Ernest Worthing and I are engaged to be married.

GWEN
[Quite politely, rising.]
My darling Cecily, I think there must be some slight error. Mr. Ernest Worthing is engaged to me. The announcement will appear in “The Morning Post” on Saturday at the latest.

CEC
[Very politely, rising.]
I am afraid you must be under some misconception. Ernest proposed to me exactly ten minutes ago.
[Shows diary.]
GWEN
[Examines diary through her lorgnette carefully.]
It is certainly very curious, for he asked me to be his wife yesterday afternoon at 5:30. If you would care to verify the incident, pray do so.

[Produces diary of her own.]
I never travel without my diary. One should always have something sensational to read in the train. I am so sorry, dear Cecily, if it is any disappointment to you, but I am afraid I have the prior claim. CEC It would distress me more than I can tell you, dear Gwendolen, if it caused you any mental or physical anguish, but I feel bound to point out that since Ernest proposed to you he clearly has changed his mind.

GWEN
[Meditatively.]
If the poor fellow has been entrapped into any foolish promise I shall consider it my duty to rescue him at once, and with a firm hand.

CEC
[Thoughtfully and sadly.]
Whatever unfortunate entanglement my dear boy may have got into, I will never reproach him with it after we are married.
GWEN Do you allude to me, Miss Cardew, as an entanglement? You are presumptuous. On an occasion of this kind it becomes more than a moral duty to speak one's mind. It becomes a pleasure.

CEC Do you suggest, Miss Fairfax, that I entrapped Ernest into an engagement? How dare you? This is no time for wearing the shallow mask of manners. When I see a spade I call it a spade.

GWEN
[Satirically.]
I am glad to say that I have never seen a spade. It is obvious that our social spheres have been widely different.

[Enter Merriman, followed by the footman. He carries a salver, table cloth, and plate stand. Cecily is about to retort. The presence of the servants exercises a restraining influence, under which both girls chafe.]

MERR Shall I lay tea here as usual, Miss? CEC
[Sternly, in a calm voice.]
Yes, as usual.

[Merriman begins to clear table and lay cloth. A long pause. Cecily and Gwendolen glare at each other.]

GWEN Are there many interesting walks in the vicinity, Miss Cardew?

CEC Oh! yes! a great many. From the top of one of the hills quite close one can see five counties.

GWEN Five counties! I don't think I should like that. I hate crowds. CEC

[Sweetly.]
I suppose that is why you live in town?

[Gwendolen bites her lip, and beats her foot nervously with her parasol.]

GWEN
[Looking round.]
Quite a well-kept garden this is, Miss Cardew.

CEC So glad you like it, Miss Fairfax.

GWEN I had no idea there were any flowers in the country.

CEC Oh, flowers are as common here, Miss Fairfax, as people are in London.
GWEN Personally I cannot understand how anybody manages to exist in the country, if anybody who is anybody does. The country always bores me to death.

CEC Ah! This is what the newspapers call agricultural depression, is it not? I believe the aristocracy are suffering very much from it just at present. It is almost an epidemic amongst them, I have been told. May I offer you some tea, Miss Fairfax? GWEN

[With elaborate politeness.]
Thank you.
[Aside.]
Detestable girl! But I require tea!

CEC
[Sweetly.]
Sugar?

GWEN
[Superciliously.]
No, thank you. Sugar is not fashionable any more.
[Cecily looks angrily at her, takes up the tongs and puts four lumps of sugar into the cup.]
CEC
[Sweetly.]
Cake or bread and butter? GWEN
[In a bored manner.]
Bread and butter, please. Cake is rarely seen at the best houses nowadays.

CEC
[Cuts a very large slice of cake, and puts it on the tray.]
Hand that to Miss Fairfax.
[Merriman does so, and goes out with footman. Gwendolen drinks the tea and makes a grimace. Puts down cup at once, reaches out hand to the bread and butter, looks at it, and finds it is cake. Rises in indignation.]

GWEN You have filled my tea with lumps of sugar, and though I asked most distinctly for bread and butter, you have given me cake. I am known for the gentleness of my disposition, and the extraordinary sweetness of my nature, but I warn you, Miss Cardew, you may go too far.
CEC
[Rising.]
To save my poor, innocent, trusting boy from the machinations of any other girl there are no lengths to which I would not go.

GWEN From the moment I saw you I distrusted you. I felt that you were false and deceitful. I am never deceived in such matters. My first impressions of people are invariably right.

CEC It seems to me, Miss Fairfax, that I am trespassing on your valuable time. No doubt you have many other calls of a similar character to make in the neighbourhood.

[Enter Jack.]
GWEN
[Catching sight of him.]
Ernest! My own Ernest!
JACK Gwendolen! Darling!
[Offers to kiss her.]
GWEN
[Drawing back.]
A moment! May I ask if you are engaged to be married to this young lady?
[Points to Cecily.]
JACK
[Laughing.]
To dear little Cecily! Of course not! What could have put such an idea into your pretty little head? GWEN Thank you. You may!

[Offers her cheek.]
CEC
[Very sweetly.]
I knew there must be some misunderstanding, Miss Fairfax. The gentleman whose arm is at present round your waist is my dear guardian, Mr. John Worthing.

GWEN I beg your pardon? CEC This is Uncle Jack.

[Receding.]
Jack! Oh!
[Enter Algernon.]
CEC Here is Ernest.

ALG
[Goes straight over to Cecily without noticing anyone else.]
My own love!
CEC

[Drawing back.]
A moment, Ernest! May I ask you- are you engaged to be married to this young lady? ALG
[Looking round.]
To what young lady? Good Heavens! Gwendolen!
CEC Yes! to good Heavens, Gwendolen, I mean to Gwendolen.

ALG
[Laughing.]
Of course not! What could have put such an idea into your pretty little head? CEC Thank you.
[Presenting her cheek to be kissed.]
You may.
[Algernon kisses her.]
GWEN I felt there was some slight error, Miss Cardew. The gentleman who is now embracing you is my cousin, Mr. Algernon Moncrieff.

CEC
[Breaking away from Algernon.]
Algernon Moncrieff! Oh!
[The two girls move towards each other and put their arms round each other's waists as if for protection.]
CEC Are you called Algernon? ALG I cannot deny it.
CEC Oh!
GWEN Is your name really John? JACK
[Standing rather proudly.]
I could deny it if I liked. I could deny anything if I liked. But my name certainly is John. It has been John for years.

CEC
[To Gwendolen.]
A gross deception has been practiced on both of us.
GWEN My poor wounded Cecily!
CEC My sweet wronged Gwendolen! GWEN
[Slowly and seriously.]
You will call me sister, will you not?
[They embrace. Jack and Algernon groan and walk up and down.]
CEC
[Rather brightly.]
There is just one question I would like to be allowed to ask my guardian.

GWEN An admirable idea! Mr. Worthing, there is just one question I would like to be permitted to put to you. Where is your brother Ernest? We are both engaged to be married to your brother Ernest, so it is a matter of some importance to us to know where your brother Ernest is at present.

JACK

[Slowly and hesitatingly.]

Gwendolen- Cecily- it is very painful for me to be forced to speak the truth. It is the first time in my life that I have ever been reduced to such a painful position, and I am really quite inexperienced in doing anything of the kind. However I will tell you quite frankly that I have no brother Ernest. I have no brother at all. I never had a brother in my life, and I certainly have not the smallest intention of ever having one in the future.

CEC

[Surprised.]

No brother at all? JACK

[Cheerily.]

None!

GWEN [Severely.] Had you never a brother of any kind?

JACK

[Pleasantly.]

Never. Not even of any kind.

GWEN I am afraid it is quite clear, Cecily, that neither of us is engaged to be married to anyone.

CEC It is not a very pleasant position for a young girl suddenly to find herself in. Is it?

GWEN Let us go into the house. They will hardly venture to come after us there.

CEC No, men are so cowardly, aren’t they?

[They retire into the house with scornful looks.]

JACK This ghastly state of things is what you call Bunburying, I suppose?

ALG Yes, and a perfectly wonderful Bunbury it is. The most wonderful Bunbury I have ever had in my life.

ALG That is absurd. One has a right to Bunbury anywhere one chooses.
Every serious Bunburyist knows that.

JACK Serious Bunburyist! Good Heavens!

ALG Well, one must be serious about something, if one wants to have any amusement in life. I happen to be serious about Bunburying.

What on earth you are serious about I haven’t got the remotest idea. About everything, I should fancy. You have such an absolutely trivial nature.

JACK Well, the only small satisfaction I have in the whole of this wretched business is that your friend Bunbury is quite exploded.

You won’t be able to run down to the country quite so often as you used to do, dear Algy. And a very good thing too.

ALG Your brother is a little off colour, isn’t he, dear Jack? You won’t be able to disappear to London quite so frequently as your wicked custom was. And not a bad thing either.

JACK As for your conduct towards Miss Cardew, I must say that your taking in a sweet, simple, innocent girl like that was quite inexcusable. To say nothing of the fact that she is my ward.

ALG I can see no possible defence at all for your deceiving a brilliant, clever, thoroughly experienced young lady like Miss Fairfax. To say nothing of the fact that she is my cousin.

JACK I wanted to be engaged to Gwendolen, that is all. I love her.

ALG Well, I simply wanted to be engaged to Cecily. I adore her.

JACK There is certainly no chance of your marrying Miss Cardew.

ALG I don’t think there is much likelihood, Jack, of you and Miss Fairfax being united.

JACK Well, that is no business of yours.

ALG If it was my business, I wouldn’t talk about it.

[ Begins to eat muffins. ]

It is very vulgar to talk about one’s business. Only people like stockbrokers do that, and then merely at dinner-parties.

JACK How you can sit there, calmly eating muffins when we are in this horrible trouble, I can’t make out. You seem to me to be perfectly heartless.

ALG Well, I can’t eat muffins in an agitated manner. The butter would probably get on my cuffs. One should always eat muffins quite calmly. It is the only way to eat them.

JACK I say it’s perfectly heartless your eating muffins at all, under the circumstances.
ALG When I am in trouble, eating is the only thing that consoles me. Indeed, when I am in really great trouble, as anyone who knows me intimately will tell you, I refuse everything except food and drink.

At the present moment I am eating muffins because I am unhappy. Besides, I am particularly fond of muffins.

[Rising.]

JACK [Rising.]

Well, that is no reason why you should eat them all in that greedy way.

[Takes muffins from Algernon.]

ALG [Offering tea-cake.]

I wish you would have tea-cake instead. I don't like tea-cake.

JACK Good Heavens! I suppose a man may eat his own muffins in his own garden.

ALG But you have just said it was perfectly heartless to eat muffins.

JACK I said it was perfectly heartless of you, under the circumstances.

That is a very different thing.

ALG That may be. But the muffins are the same.

[He seizes the muffin-dish from Jack.]

JACK Algy, I wish to goodness you would go.

ALG You can't possibly ask me to go without having some dinner. It's absurd. I never go without my dinner. No one ever does, except vegetarians and people like that. Besides I have just made arrangements with Dr. Chasuble, to be christened at a quarter to six under the name of Ernest.

JACK My dear fellow, the sooner you give up that nonsense the better. I made arrangements this morning with Dr. Chasuble to be christened myself at 5:30, and I naturally will take the name of Ernest.

Gwendolen would wish it. We can't both be christened Ernest. It's absurd. Besides, I have a perfect right to be christened if I like.

There is no evidence at all that I ever have been christened by anybody. I should think it extremely probable I never was, and so does Dr. Chasuble. It is entirely different in your case. You have been christened already.

ALG Yes, but I have not been christened for years.
JACK Yes, but you have been christened. That is the important thing.

ALG Quite so. So I know my constitution can stand it. If you are not quite sure about your ever having been christened, I must say I think it rather dangerous your venturing on it now. It might make you very unwell. You can hardly have forgotten that someone very closely connected with you was very nearly carried off this week in Paris by a severe chill.

JACK Yes, but you said yourself that a severe chill was not hereditary.

ALG It usen't to be, I know- but I daresay it is now. Science is always making wonderful improvements in things.

JACK

[Picking up the muffin-dish.]

Oh, that is nonsense; you are always talking nonsense.

ALG Jack, you are at the muffins again. I wish you wouldn’t. There are only two left.

[Takes them.]

I told you I was particularly fond of muffins.

JACK But I hate tea-cake.

ALG Why on earth then do you allow tea-cake to be served up for your guests? What ideas you have of hospitality!

JACK Algernon! I have already told you to go. I don’t want you here.

Why don’t you go? ALG I haven’t quite finished my tea yet! and there is still one muffin left.

[Jack groans, and sinks into a chair. Algernon still continues eating.]

THIRD ACT

SCENE- Morning-room at the Manor House. [Gwendolen and Cecily are at the window, looking out into the garden.]

GWEN The fact that they did not follow us at once into the house, as anyone else would have done, seems to me to show that they have some sense of shame left.

CEC They have been eating muffins. That looks like repentance.

GWEN

[After a pause.]
They don’t seem to notice us at all. Couldn’t you cough? CEC But I haven’t got a cough.
GWEN They’re looking at us. What effrontery!
CEC They’re approaching. That’s very forward of them.
GWEN Let us preserve a dignified silence.
CEC Certainly. It’s the only thing to do now.
[Enter Jack followed by Algernon. They whistle some dreadful popular air from a British Opera.]

GWEN This dignified silence seems to produce an unpleasant effect.
CEC A most distasteful one.
GWEN But we will not be the first to speak.
CEC Certainly not.
GWEN Mr. Worthing, I have something very particular to ask you. Much depends on your reply.
CEC Gwendolen, your common sense is invaluable. Mr. Moncrieff, kindly answer me the following question. Why did you pretend to be my guardian’s brother? ALG In order that I might have an opportunity of meeting you.

CEC
[To Gwendolen.]
That certainly seems a satisfactory explanation, does it not? GWEN Yes, dear, if you can believe him.
CEC I don’t. But that does not affect the wonderful beauty of his answer.
GWEN True. In matters of grave importance, style, not sincerity is the vital thing. Mr. Worthing, what explanation can you offer to me for pretending to have a brother? Was it in order that you might have an opportunity of coming up to town to see me as often as possible? JACK Can you doubt it, Miss Fairfax? GWEN I have the gravest doubts upon the subject. But I intend to crush them. This is not the moment for German scepticism.

[Moving to Cecily.]
Their explanations appear to be quite satisfactory, especially Mr. Worthing’s. That seems to me to have the stamp of truth upon it.
CEC I am more than content with what Mr. Moncrieff said. His voice alone inspires one with absolute credulity.
GWEN Then you think we should forgive them?
CEC Yes. I mean no.
GWEN True! I had forgotten. There are principles at stake that one cannot surrender. Which of us should tell them? The task is not a pleasant one.

CEC Could we not both speak at the same time? GWEN An excellent idea! I nearly always speak at the same time as other people. Will you take the time from me? CEC Certainly.

[Gwendolen beats time with uplifted finger.]
GWEN AND CEC
[Speaking together.]
Your Christian names are still an insuperable barrier. That is all!

JACK AND ALG
[Speaking together.]
Our Christian names! Is that all? But we are going to be christened this afternoon.

GWEN
[To Jack.]
For my sake you are prepared to do this terrible thing? JACK I am.

CEC
[To Algernon.]
To please me you are ready to face this fearful ordeal? ALG I am! GWEN How absurd to talk of the equality of the sexes! Where questions of self-sacrifice are concerned, men are infinitely beyond us.

JACK We are.
[Claps hands with Algernon.]
CEC They have moments of physical courage of which we women know absolutely nothing.

GWEN
[To Jack.]
Darling!

ALG
[To Cecily.]
Darling!
[They fall into each other’s arms.]
[Enter Merriman. When he enters he coughs loudly, seeing the situation.]

MERR Ahem! Ahem! Lady Bracknell!

JACK Good Heavens!

[Enter Lady Bracknell. The couples separate in alarm. Exit Merriman.]

LADY BRA Gwendolen! What does this mean? GWEN Merely that I am engaged to be married to Mr. Worthing, mamma.

LADY BRA Come here. Sit down. Sit down immediately. Hesitation of any kind is a sign of mental decay in the young, of physical weakness in the old.

[Turns to Jack.]

Apprised, sir, of my daughter’s sudden flight by her trusty maid, whose confidence I purchased by means of a small coin, I followed her at once by a luggage train. Her unhappy father is, I am glad to say, under the impression that she is attending a more than usually lengthy lecture by the University Extension Scheme on the Influence of a permanent income on Thought. I do not propose to undeceive him. Indeed I have never undeceived him on any question. I would consider it wrong. But of course, you will clearly understand that all communication between yourself and my daughter must cease immediately from this moment. On this point, as indeed on all points, I am firm.

JACK I am engaged to be married to Gwendolen, Lady Bracknell!

LADY BRA You are nothing of the kind, so. And now, as regards Algernon!...

Algernon!

ALG Yes, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRA May I ask if it is in this house that your invalid friend Mr. Bunbury resides? ALG

[Stammering.]

Oh! No! Bunbury doesn’t live here. Bunbury is somewhere else at present. In fact, Bunbury is dead.

LADY BRA Dead! When did Mr. Bunbury die? His death must have been extremely sudden.
ALG

[Airily.]

Oh! I killed Bunbury this afternoon. I mean poor Bunbury died this afternoon.

LADY BRA What did he die of? ALG Bunbury? Oh, he was quite exploded.

LADY BRA Exploded! Was he the victim of a revolutionary outrage? I was not aware that Mr. Bunbury was interested in social legislation. If so, he is well punished for his morbidity.

ALG My dear Aunt Augusta, I mean he was found out! The doctors found out that Bunbury could not live, that is what I mean—so Bunbury died.

LADY BRA He seems to have had great confidence in the opinion of his physicians. I am glad, however, that he made up his mind at the last to some definite course of action, and acted under proper medical advice. And now that we have finally got rid of this Mr. Bunbury, may I ask, Mr. Worthing, who is that young person whose hand my nephew Algernon is now holding in what seems to me a peculiarly unnecessary manner? JACK That lady is Miss Cecily Cardew, my ward.

[Lady Bracknell bows coldly to Cecily.]

ALG I am engaged to be married to Cecily, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRA I beg your pardon? CEC Mr. Moncrieff and I are engaged to be married, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRA [With a shiver, crossing to the sofa and sitting down.]

I do not know whether there is anything peculiarly exciting in the air of this particular part of Hertfordshire, but the number of engagements that go on seems to me considerably above the proper average that statistics have laid down for our guidance. I think some preliminary enquiry on my part would not be out of place.

Mr. Worthing, is Miss Cardew at all connected with any of the larger railway stations in London? I merely desire information. Until yesterday I had no idea that there were any families or persons whose origin was a Terminus.

[Jack looks perfectly furious, but restrains himself.]

JACK

[In a clear, cold voice.]
Miss Cardew is the granddaughter of the late Mr. Thomas Cardew of 149, Belgrave Square, S.W.; Gervase Park, Dorking, Surrey; and the Sporran, Fifeshire, N.B.

LADY BRA That sounds not unsatisfactory. Three addresses always inspire confidence, even in tradesmen. But what proof have I of their authenticity.

JACK I have carefully preserved the Court Guides of the period. They are open to your inspection, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRA [Grimly.]
I have known strange errors in that publication.

JACK Miss Cardew’s family solicitors are Messrs. Markby, Markby, and Markby.

LADY BRA Markby, Markby, and Markby? A firm of the very highest position in their profession. Indeed I am told that one of the Mr. Markbys is occasionally to be seen at dinner parties. So far I am satisfied.

JACK [Very irritably.] How extremely kind of you, Lady Bracknell! I have also in my possession, you will be pleased to hear, certificates of Miss Cardew’s birth, baptism, whooping cough, registration, vaccination, confirmation, and the measles; both the German and the English variety.

LADY BRA Ah! A life crowded with incident, I see; though perhaps somewhat too exciting for a young girl. I am not myself in favour of premature experiences.

[Rises, looks at her watch.]
Gwendolen! the time approaches for our departure. We have not a moment to lose. As a matter of form, Mr. Worthing, I had better ask you if Miss Cardew has any little fortune.

JACK Oh! about a hundred and thirty thousand pounds in the Funds.
That is all. Good-bye, Lady Bracknell. So pleased to have seen you.

LADY BRA [Sitting down again.]
A moment, Mr. Worthing. A hundred and thirty thousand pounds! And in the Funds! Miss Cardew seems to me a most attractive young lady, now that I look at her. Few girls of the present day have any really solid qualities, any of the qualities that last, and improve with time. We live, I regret to say, in an age of surfaces.

[To Cecily.]
Come over here, dear.
[Cecily goes across.]
Pretty child! your dress is sadly simple, and your hair seems almost as Nature might have left it. But we can soon alter all that. A thoroughly experienced French maid produces a really marvellous result in a very brief space of time. I remember recommending one to young Lady Lancing, and after three months her own husband did not know her.

JACK
[Aside.]
And after six months nobody knew her.

LADY BRA
[Glares at Jack for a few moments. Then bends, with a practised smile, to Cecily.]
Kindly turn round, sweet child.
[Cecily turns completely round.]
No, the side view is what I want.
[Cecily presents her profile.]
Yes, quite as I expected. There are distinct social possibilities in your profile. The two weak points in our age are its want of principle and its want of profile. The chin a little higher, dear. Style largely depends on the way the chin is worn. They are worn very high, just at present. Algernon!

ALG Yes, Aunt Augusta!
LADY BRA There are distinct social possibilities in Miss Cardew’s profile.

ALG Cecily is the sweetest, dearest, prettiest girl in the whole world.

And I don’t care twopence about social possibilities.
LADY BRA Never speak disrespectfully of Society, Algernon. Only people who can’t get into it do that.
[To Cecily.]

Dear child, of course you know that Algernon has nothing but his debts to depend upon. But I do not approve of mercenary marriages. When I married Lord Bracknell I had no fortune of any kind. But I never dreamed for a moment of allowing that to stand in my way. Well, I suppose I must give my consent.

ALG Thank you, Aunt Augusta.
LADY BRA Cecily, you may kiss me!

CEC

[Kisses her.]
Thank you, Lady Bracknell.
LADY BRA You may also address me as Aunt Augusta for the future.
CEC Thank you, Aunt Augusta.
LADY BRA The marriage, I think, had better take place quite soon.
ALG Thank you, Aunt Augusta.
CEC Thank you, Aunt Augusta.
LADY BRA To speak frankly, I am not in favour of long engagements. They give people the opportunity of finding out each other’s character before marriage, which I think is never advisable.

JACK I beg your pardon for interrupting you, Lady Bracknell, but this engagement is quite out of the question. I am Miss Cardew’s guardian, and she cannot marry without my consent until she comes of age. That consent I absolutely decline to give.

LADY BRA Upon what grounds, may I ask? Algernon is an extremely, I may almost say an ostentatiously, eligible young man. He has nothing, but he looks everything. What more can one desire? JACK It pains me very much to have to speak frankly to you, Lady Bracknell, about your nephew, but the fact is that I do not approve at all of his moral character. I suspect him of being untruthful.

[Algernon and Cecily look at him in indignant amazement.]
LADY BRA Untruthful! My nephew Algernon? Impossible! He is an Oxonian.

JACK I fear there can be no possible doubt about the matter. This afternoon, during my temporary absence in London on an important question of romance, he obtained admission to my house by means of the false pretense of being my brother. Under an assumed name he drank, I’ve just been informed by my butler, an entire pint bottle of my Perrier-Jouet, Brut, ‘89; a wine I was specially reserving for myself. Continuing his disgraceful deception, he succeeded in the course of the afternoon in alienating the affections of my only ward. He subsequently stayed to tea, and devoured every single muffin. And what makes his conduct all the more heartless is, that he was perfectly well aware from the first that I have no brother, that I never had a brother, and that I don’t intend to have a brother, not even of any kind. I distinctly told him so myself yesterday afternoon.

LADY BRA Ahem! Mr. Worthing, after careful consideration I have decided entirely to overlook my nephew’s conduct to you.

JACK That is very generous of you, Lady Bracknell. My own decision, however, is unalterable. I decline to give my consent.

LADY BRA [To Cecily.] Come here, sweet child. [Cecily goes over.] How old are you, dear?

CEC Well, I am really only eighteen, but I always admit to twenty when I go to evening parties.

LADY BRA You are perfectly right in making some slight alteration. Indeed, no woman should ever be quite accurate about her age. It looks so calculating....

[In a meditative manner.] Eighteen, but admitting to twenty at evening parties. Well, it will not be very long before you are of age and free from the restraints of tutelage. So I don’t think your guardian’s consent is, after all, a matter of any importance.

JACK Pray excuse me, Lady Bracknell, for interrupting you again, but it is only fair to tell you that according to the terms of her grandfather’s will Miss Cardew does not come legally of age till she is thirty-five.

LADY BRA That does not seem to me to be a grave objection. Thirty-five is a very attractive age. London society is full of women of the very highest birth who have, of their own free choice, remained thirty-five for years. Lady Dumbleton is an instance in point. To my own knowledge she has been thirty-five ever since she arrived at the age of forty, which was many years ago now, I see no reason why our dear Cecily should not be even still more attractive at the age you mention than she is at present. There will be a large accumulation of property.

CEC Algy, could you wait for me till I was thirty-five? ALG Of course I could, Cecily. You know I could.

CEC Yes, I felt it instinctively, but I couldn’t wait all that time. I hate waiting even five minutes for anybody. It always makes me rather cross. I am not punctual myself, I know, but I do like punctuality in others, and waiting, even to be married, is quite out of the question.

ALG Then what is to be done, Cecily?

CEC I don’t know, Mr. Moncrieff.

LADY BRA My dear Mr. Worthing, as Miss Cardew states positively that she cannot wait till she is thirty-five - a remark which I am bound to say seems to me to show a somewhat impatient nature - I would beg of you to reconsider your decision.

JACK But, my dear Lady Bracknell, the matter is entirely in your own hands. The moment you consent to my marriage with Gwendolen, I will most gladly allow your nephew to form an alliance with my ward.

LADY BRA

[Rising and drawing herself up.]

You must be quite aware that what you propose is out of the question.

JACK Then a passionate celibacy is all that any of us can look forward to.

LADY BRA That is not the destiny I propose for Gwendolen. Algernon, of course, can choose for himself.

[Pulls out her watch.]

Come, dear;

[Gwendolen rises.]

we have already missed five, if not six, trains. To miss any more might expose us to comment on the platform.

[Enter Dr. Chasuble.]

CHAS Everything is quite ready for the christenings.

LADY BRA The christenings, sir! Is not that somewhat premature?

CHAS [Looking rather puzzled, and pointing to Jack and Algernon.] Both these gentlemen have expressed a desire for immediate baptism.

LADY BRA At their age? The idea is grotesque and irreligious! Algernon, I forbid you to be baptised. I will not hear of such excesses. Lord Bracknell would be highly displeased if he learned that that was the way in which you wasted your time and money.

CHAS Am I to understand then that there are to be no christenings at all this afternoon? JACK I don’t think that, as things are now, it would be of much practical value to either of us, Dr. Chasuble.

CHAS I am grieved to hear such sentiments from you, Mr. Worthing.

They savour of the heretical views of the Anabaptists, views that I have completely refuted in four of my unpublished sermons. However, as your present mood seems to be one peculiarly secular, I will return to the church at once. Indeed, I have just been informed by the pew-opener that for the last hour and a half Miss Prism has been waiting for me in the vestry.

LADY BRA

[Starting.]

Miss Prism! Did I hear you mention a Miss Prism? CHAS Yes, Lady Bracknell. I am on my way to join her.

LADY BRA Pray, allow me to detain you for a moment. This matter may prove to be one of vital importance to Lord Bracknell and myself. Is this Miss Prism a female of repellent aspect, remotely connected with education? CHAS

[Somewhat indignantly.]

She is the most cultivated of ladies, and the very picture of respectability.

LADY BRA It is obviously the same person. May I ask what position she holds in your household?

CHAS

[Severely.]

I am a celibate, madam.

JACK

[Interposing.]

Miss Prism, Lady Bracknell, has been for the last three years Miss Cardew’s esteemed governess and valued companion.

LADY BRA In spite of what I hear of her, I must see her at once. Let her be sent for.
CHAS
[Looking off.]
She approaches; she is nigh.
[Enter Miss Prism hurriedly.]
MISS PRI I was told you expected me in the vestry, dear Canon. I have been waiting for you there for an hour and three quarters.
[Catches sight of Lady Bracknell who has fixed her with a stony glare. Miss Prism grows pale and quails. She looks anxiously round as if desirous to escape.]

LADY BRA
[In a severe, judicial voice.]
Prism!
[Miss Prism bows her head in shame.]
Come here, Prism!
[Miss Prism approaches in a humble manner.]
Prism! Where is that baby?
[General consternation. The Canon starts back in horror. Algernon and Jack pretend to be anxious to shield Cecily and Gwendolen from hearing the details of a terrible public scandal.]

Twenty-eight years ago, Prism, you left Lord Bracknell’s house, Number 104, Upper Grosvenor Street, in charge of a perambulator that contained a baby, of the male sex. You never returned. A few weeks later, through the elaborate investigations of the Metropolitan police, the perambulator was discovered at midnight, standing by itself in a remote corner of Bayswater. It contained the manuscript of a three-volume novel of more than usually revolting sentimentality.

[Miss Prism starts in involuntary indignation.]
But the baby was not there!
[Everyone looks at Miss Prism.]
Prism! Where is that baby?
[A pause.]
MISS PRI Lady Bracknell, I admit with shame that I do not know. I only wish I did. The plain facts of the case are these. On the morning of the day you mention, a day that is forever branded on my memory, I prepared as usual to take the baby out in its perambulator. I had also with me a somewhat old, but capacious hand-bag, in which I had intended to place the manuscript of a work of fiction that I had written during my few unoccupied hours. In a moment of mental abstraction, for which I can never forgive myself, I deposited the manuscript in the bassinette, and placed the baby in the hand-bag.

JACK

[Who has been listening attentively.]

But where did you deposit the hand-bag? MISS PRI Do not ask me, Mr. Worthing.

JACK Miss Prism, this is a matter of no small importance to me. I insist on knowing where you deposited the hand-bag that contained that infant.

MISS PRI I left it in the cloak room of one of the larger railway stations in London.

JACK What railway station? MISS PRI

[Quite crushed.]

Victoria. The Brighton line.

[Sinks into a chair.]

JACK I must retire to my room for a moment. Gwendolen, wait for me here.

GWEN If you are not too long, I will wait here for you all my life.

[Exit Jack in great excitement.]

CHAS What do you think this means, Lady Bracknell? LADY BRA

I dare not even suspect, Dr. Chasuble. I need hardly tell you that in families of high position strange coincidences are not supposed to occur. They are hardly considered the thing.

[Noises heard overhead as if someone was throwing trunks about. Everyone looks up.]

CEC Uncle Jack seems strangely agitated.

CHAS Your guardian has a very emotional nature.

LADY BRA This noise is extremely unpleasant. It sounds as if he was having an argument. I dislike arguments of any kind. They are always vulgar, and often convincing.

CHAS

[Looking up.]

It has stopped now.

[The noise is redoubled.]

LADY BRA I wish he would arrive at some conclusion.

GWEN This suspense is terrible. I hope it will last.

[Enter Jack with a hand-bag of black leather in his hand.]
JACK
[Rushing over to Miss Prism.]
Is this the hand-bag, Miss Prism? Examine it carefully before you speak. The happiness of more than one life depends on your answer.

MISS PRI
[Calmly.]
It seems to be mine. Yes, here is the injury it received through the upsetting of a Gower Street omnibus in younger and happier days.

Here is the stain on the lining caused by the explosion of a temperance beverage, an incident that occurred at Leamington. And here, on the lock, are my initials. I had forgotten that in an extravagant mood I had had them placed there. The bag is undoubtedly mine. I am delighted to have it so unexpectedly restored to me. It has been a great inconvenience being without it all these years.

JACK
[In a pathetic voice.]
Miss Prism, more is restored to you than this hand-bag. I was the baby you placed in it.

MISS PRI
[Amazed.]
You?

JACK
[Embracing her.]
Yes... Mother!

MISS PRI
[Recoiling in indignant astonishment.]
Mr. Worthing! I am unmarried!
JACK Unmarried! I do not deny that is a serious blow. But after all, who has a right to cast a stone against one who has suffered? Cannot repentance wipe out an act of folly? Why should there be one law for men, and another for women? Mother, I forgive you.

[Tries to embrace her again.]
MISS PRI
[Still more indignant.]
Mr. Worthing, there is some error.
[Pointing to Lady Bracknell.]
There is the lady who can tell you who you really are.

JACK
[After a pause.]
Lady Bracknell, I hate to seem inquisitive, but would you kindly inform me who I am? LADY BRA I am afraid that the news I have to give you will not altogether please you. You are the son of my poor sister, Mrs. Moncrieff, and consequently Algernon's elder brother.

JACK Algy's elder brother! Then I have a brother after all. I knew I had a brother! I always said I had a brother! Cecily, how could you have ever doubted that I had a brother?

[Seizes hold of Algernon.]
Dr. Chasuble, my unfortunate brother. Miss Prism, my unfortunate brother. Gwendolen, my unfortunate brother. Algy, you young scoundrel, you will have to treat me with more respect in the future. You have never behaved to me like a brother in all your life.

ALG Well, not till today, old boy, I admit. I did my best, however, though I was out of practise.

[Shakes hands.]
GWEN
[To Jack.]
My own! But what own are you? What is your Christian name, now that you have become someone else? JACK Good Heavens!... I had quite forgotten that point. Your decision on the subject of my name is irrevocable, I suppose? GWEN I never change, except in my affections.

CEC What a noble nature you have, Gwendolen!
JACK Then the question had better be cleared up at once. Aunt Augusta, a moment. At the time when Miss Prism left me in the hand-bag, had I been christened already?

LADY BRA Every luxury that money could buy, including christening, had been lavished on you by your fond and doting parents.

JACK Then I was christened! That is settled. Now, what name was I given? Let me know the worst.
LADY BRA Being the eldest son you were naturally christened after your father.

JACK
[Irritably.]
Yes, but what was my father’s Christian name? LADY BRA
[Meditatively.]
I cannot at the present moment recall what the General’s Christian name was. But I have no doubt he had one. He was eccentric, I admit. But only in later years. And that was the result of the Indian climate, and marriage, and indigestion, and other things of that kind.

JACK Algy! Can’t you recollect what our father’s Christian name was? ALG My dear boy, we were never even on speaking terms. He died before I was a year old.

JACK His name would appear in the Army Lists of the period, I suppose, Aunt Augusta? LADY BRA The General was essentially a man of peace, except in his domestic life. But I have no doubt his name would appear in any military directory.

JACK The Army Lists of the last forty years are here. These delightful records should have been my constant study.

[Rushes to bookcase and tears the books out.]
M. Generals... Mallam, Maxbohm, Magley, what ghastly names they have- Markby, Migsby, Mobbs, Moncrieff, Lieutenant 1840, Captain, Lieutenant-Colonel, Colonel, General 1869, Christian names, Ernest, John.

[_puts book very quietly down and speaks quite calmly.]
I always told you, Gwendolen, my name was Ernest, didn’t I? Well, it is Ernest after all. I mean it naturally is Ernest.

LADY BRA Yes, I remember now that the General was called Ernest. I knew I had some particular reason for disliking the name.

GWEN Ernest! My own Ernest! I felt from the first that you could have no other name!

JACK Gwendolen, it is a terrible thing for a man to find out suddenly that all his life he has been speaking nothing but the truth. Can you forgive me? GWEN I can. For I feel that you are sure to change.

JACK My own one!
CHAS
[To Miss Prism.]
Laetitia!
[Embraces her.]
MISS PRI
[Enthusiastically.]
Frederick! At last!
ALG Cecily!
[Embraces her.]
At last!
JACK Gwendolen!
[Embraces her.]
At last!
LADY BRA My nephew, you seem to be displaying signs of triviality.
JACK On the contrary, Aunt Augusta, I’ve now realized for the first time in my life the vital Importance of Being Ernest.

CURTAIN
